Mrs. T. L. Morrow presented her husband with a fine daughter yesterday morning and the new comer's grandfather, Mr. Geo. T. Herndon, is wearing a broad guage smile.

Dr. J. N. Prestridge, secretary of the General Baptist Convention of North America, received a telegram yesterday stating that the citizens of Chattanooga, Tenn., had extended an invitation for the body to meet in that city on the two days succeeding the convention of the Southern Baptist Association, which will convene there next May. An invitation had been extended by the citizens of Cincinnati for the Northern Baptist Societies to meet in that city on the same date as the Chattanooga meeting. It is likely that the delegates to the Cincinnati meeting will go to Chattanooga and visit the Baptist there in session.—Courier Journal.

SKI RUNNING FASHIONABLE

This Sport of Scandinavian Origin Is Not Confined to Land of Birth, But Is Enjoyed Elsewhere.

Ski running is of Scandinavian origin, but has of late become quite a fashionable sport in our country, where natural facilities for its enjoyment exist.

The ski—pronounced shee—is, however, not confined to sport in the land of its nativity. It forms an essential factor in the lives of the people of Northern Europe—a necessary medium of travel where the country lies deep buried in snow so that walking is impossible. When a wolf is discovered the hardy peasants lose no time in arranging a ski hunt against the enemy. When the wolf leads they follow, and the sense of self-preservation is so strong that, though members of the party drop from fatigue and exhaustion, the fittest hunters press on till the object of the hunt is attained.

On its native snows the ski was used as a means of getting through the day's work, and offered little inducement toward recreation and relaxation. But in the hilly countries of its adoption, where slopes can be descended at lightning speed, and where one finds the keenest delight in the mere fact of traveling, ski running has taken the place of skating both as a national and a fashionable pastime.

The art of jumping on skis was first brought to prominent notice by the peasants of Telemarken, to whom running, leaping and gliding down hillsides on this picturesque footgear came as naturally as walking in boots does to us. By and by the Norwegian of the towns, wont to lead an indolent, enervating existence during the winter months, were attracted to the ski as a possible means of healthy amusement. To such purpose did they apply themselves in the new sport that they soon outdid their teachers, the country folk, in skill and daring.

Nor is indulgence in this invigorating pastime confined to the male portion of the community. Till recently it was not considered "correct" for ladies to ski, but habit has broken down the barrier of prejudice, and now skiing is the national sport of the Scandinavian women.

HER PA HAD AN AUTO, TOO

Therefore This Broken-Down Machine Owner Might Swear Before Little Girl on Curbside.

Gavin L. Payne, of Indianapolis, and his automobile figured in the Indianapolis News. Mr. Payne started out to enjoy a spin not long ago. He got on smoothly until he got well to the outskirts of the city, rather far from a car line, then the auto, actuated by the motives that only autos know, decided that it had gone far enough. It stopped, and no pulling of levers or turning of cranks was sufficient to induce it to go farther.

After fruitless efforts to get it to change its mind Mr. Payne climbed from his seat and worked around the machine. Nothing seemed to do any good, and he was rapidly getting into a state that is relieved only by strong language. However, the struggles with the auto had attracted a good-sized company of children, and Mr. Payne did nothing worse than think. The children's interest grew as the autoist tinkered. Among them was a little girl with long, golden hair, and deep blue eyes. She crowded close to Mr. Payne as he worked.

Finally he became so exasperated that it seemed as if he really must say something. He turned to the little girl.

"I wish you would run away, little girl," he remarked.

"Why?" she asked, looking up at him.

Perhaps he wished to tell the truth; perhaps he only wished to see what the little girl would do. At any rate he said to her quite frankly: "I want to swear."

"Go right ahead," replied the child; "don't mind me. My father has an auto too."

The Time to Climb.

Climb the ladder of fame while you are young. Not only is your wind better and your avoirdupois less then, but people are not so likely to make irritating remarks about your making a monkey of yourself.—Puck.

MEACHAM'S MAP OF Christian County.

A new and up-to-date map of the county, corrected and revised to Dec. 1, 1905, will be issued about Dec. 10. It will show all voting precincts in colors, magisterial districts, cities, towns, villages, railway stations, rivers, creeks, turnpikes, county roads, railroads and Rural Free Delivery routes. It will give the area of the county, population and natural resources.

It Will Be the Only Correct Map of the County Ever Issued and will be the first one placed upon the market in more than 20 years. It will be of convenient size for a wall map, about 22x28 inches, and will be mounted, ready for hanging.

The map is copyrighted and will be sold for 50 cents. Orders taken now for early delivery. Every subscriber who pays a full year in advance will be given a map FREE. New subscribers who start at once will be received to Jan. 1, 1907, for only $2 for KENTUCKIAN and map.

Why Buy McClure's?

McClure's Magazine is bought and read in homes not because it is a magazine, but because it is THE magazine. Who?

FIRST—THE PRICE. It costs but one dollar a year, or less than ten cents a number, for over thirteen hundred two-column pages of reading matter. This amounts in actual bulk to twenty-five books costing anywhere from a dollar to two dollars a volume.

SECOND—QUALITY. The reading matter is written by America's leading writers—the best short story writers on timely articles, the best writers of important series, such as Schurz's Reminiscences or Baker's Railroad articles.

THIRD—TIMELINESS. The reading matter in McClure's is not only good; it is not only only entertaining, amusing, instructive and inspiring—it is also about the subjects in which you and all Americans are most interested at the time. No subjects in the next twelve months are going to be so important as the question of railroad rates and rebates and the question of life insurance. Both of these questions will be discussed by authorities in an impartial, careful, interesting way.

FOURTH—ITS CHARACTER. McClure's Magazine is not edited for children, but at the same time, there is never a line in it that any young girl might not read. Its advertising pages are as clean as its editorial pages.

McClure's Magazine

Concerning the Family and Character of Norway's Ruler

Carl Half Dane and Half Swede—Of Oldenburg and Bernadotte
Stock—Close Kin to Mightiest of European Monarchs.

It may be of interest to learn something of the family, past and present, of the Danish prince elected king of newly-independent Norway.

Prince Carl's grandfather is the first king of Denmark of the house of Schleswig-Holstein-Sonderburg-Glücksburg. This grandfather, the long-lived King Christian, "father-in-law of Europe," acceded to the throne of Denmark when the direct male line of the house of Oldenburg became extinct upon the death of Frederick VII. (1863). For more than four centuries the Oldenburgs had occupied the throne of Denmark. The sixteenth Oldenburg king, in 1662, in view of this monarchy dying without direct heirs, the great powers of Europe, "taking into consideration that the maintenance of the integrity of the Danish monarchy, as connected with the general interest of the balance of power in Europe, was a high importance to the preservation of peace," had signed a treaty making the succession of the crown of Denmark over to Prince Christian of Glücksburg, the direct male descendant of his union with the Princess Louise of Hesse-Cassel, who was niece to King Christian VIII. of Denmark. Although Christian quested him, Carl may think not unkindly on the Oldenburg inheritance. Having spoken at some length of his family and connections, let us consider Carl's own career. He is still quite a young man, was born in Copenhagen in 1872; with his brothers and sisters was reared in the old feudal castle of Amlelsborg, near the capital, as we mentioned before, brought up in an unpretentious manner. He was educated in the public school, passed examinations with honors, later became a lieutenant in the Danish navy. In manner he is quiet and unassuming, is reported to have no liking for display and ceremony. The prince is considered a person of no small determination and perseverance.

In his marriage, at least, he showed proof of this, in spite of the opposition of his mother, espousing the Princess Maud, youngest daughter of King Edward of England. It is told that Wilhelm of Holland looked favorably on the Danish prince, that the ambitious mother favored an alliance with the queen of the Netherlands, but the queen of the Netherlands, who are first cousins, were much in love with each other, and, opposition notwithstanding, they married. STRAYED

One bay mare, 14 hands high, six years old. Left my premises, four miles south of Tipton, about three weeks ago. Return of money Geo. E. Ruff, Tipton, Mo.

PRINCE CARL OF DENMARK.

is not counted a king of the house of Oldenburg, he is of Oldenburg stock; great-grandson of Frederick V.

The children of their union were six, the eventual marriage of whom made Christian a father-in-law and Louise a mother-in-law of Europe. Frederick, heir apparent, married Louisa, daughter of King Carl XV. of Sweden and Norway. The oldest daughter, Princess Alexandra, married the Prince of Wales, the now queen of England. Prince Wilhelm rules as king of Greece. Marie Dagmar married Alexander III. in low European danger of Russia. Princess Thyra married the immensely wealthy duke of Cumberland, cousin of Queen Victoria. Prince Waldemar, espoused Princess Marie d'Orleans.

Carl is the second son of Frederick, heir apparent. There is nothing more surprising and wondrous than trying to unravel the tangled threads of European "royalties" relationships, trying to remember what kin this princeling is to that; but without undue effort we may keep a few facts clear concerning Prince Carl. He is son of Denmark's heir apparent, on his mother's side, grand-nephew of King Oscar of Sweden; and son-in-law of King Edward of England.

Though father-in-law of the mightiest of Europe, Denmark's king has been a most democratic sovereign, his court marked by simplicity; and by what we are pleased to call a concomitant of the simple life, purity. The eldest son, Frederick, has brought up his large family in an unpretentious way, though he and his wife are very rich. He inherited $15,000,000 from her maternal grandfather, and, as only child, the entire wealth of her father, the king of Sweden. Carl is half Swede and half Dane, both Bernadotte and Oldenburg.

In an article in the Popular Science "Monthly" by Dr. Frederick P. Woods on "Ancient and Modern Heredity in Royalty," we find about the "evidence from Denmark," these conclusions: "Good natured, upright and not more than ordinarily gifted is a fair estimate for our 87 members of the Oldenburg family, taken as a whole. . . . In the pedigree of the Oldenburgs, there is no haplog, no hereditary disease, no insanity or moral depravity. There is no Orange or Hohenzollern genius." It appears to us pretty good for a king, so king, so, to have the chance of being normal, at average man. And whatever the other strains may be—were married in Buckingham palace, July 22, 1896, and since that time have led a simple, happy life in Copenhagen. It is said that they are as devoted to each other to-day as they were during their courtship. They have one son, Prince Alexander.

"Both are described as cheery, fond of laughter and possessed of sunny dispositions. Before her marriage the princess was noted for her love of outdoor sports, and was known to her intimates as 'Prince Hal.' She has traveled extensively in Europe, and has mixed freely with persons in ordinary stations of life. Not a bad wife for ruler of an independent people like the Norwegians. An article in Munsey of June, 1896, commenting on the approaching wedding of Prince Carl and Princess Maud, made the statement that the latter was the brightest member of the Swedish royal family; that this cleverness, too, is favorable, for the Norwegians are intellectual as well as independent.

When Carl was first proposed as king of Norway, there was much comment as to what title he would assume. Some favored that of Haakon VI., as Haakon V. was Norway's last independent and distinct monarch; and, furthermore, one of the King Haakons, a very popular ruler, was brought up at the court of King Athelstan of England. And here it may be well to interpolate a glimpse of Norway as independent land. Her petty tribal kingdoms were united under Harald Fairhair, who died about 935. His son Haakon succeeded. In 1028 Canute the Great of Denmark drove out Olaf the Saint, but Olaf's son regained possession of the throne in 1035; and from this date on to 1219 Norway was governed by native kings. Under Haakon the Old (1217) the country reached the height of its prosperity. When Haakon V. died without male heirs, the national assembly elected Magnus of Sweden, son of Haakon's daughter. He was succeeded by his son Haakon, and the latter's son Olaf was elected king of Denmark and became ruler of both Scandinavian kingdoms. After his death his mother, ambitious Queen Margaret, became mistress of the three kingdoms, bound together by the union of Calmar (1267). From now on to 1314 Norway continued to unite with Denmark, that year the date of her union with Sweden.

The new king, married the new-old throne. Long live Haakon!

The Weather.

For Kentucky: Saturday generally fair.

Secretary Bonaparte has officially reprimanded Midshipman Minor Meriwether, Jr., of Louisiana, for killing Cadet Branch.

Charles A. Peabody succeeds Richard A. McCurdy as president of the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York. The salary is reduced from $150,000 to $50,000.

Miss Mary Waggoner, aged 23, and James Chaffin, aged 19, were married in Breckinridge county on the 13th. They had been sweethearts since the groom was a mere child.

The Iowa Supreme Court has decided that it is illegal to ship liquor into that state marked C. O. D., and the purchaser can recover money paid on such shipments.

The spirit of revolt in Russia's Baltic provinces is still sprouting and a real revolution is threatened. The czar is standing firmly behind Premier Witte, who is the Man of the Hour.

Bennett, of New York, has introduced a bill to cut down the representation of the Southern states 35 in the House on account of the disfranchisement of the negroes.

Corporal punishment, abolished in the Louisville public schools two years ago, has been re-established, though a good deal of red tape is necessary before the hickory finally reaches the hide.

President Roosevelt has appointed Gen. Wm. T. Martin, a Confederate General and a Democrat, postmaster at Natchez, Miss. He was not an applicant and there were several Republicans after the coveted position.

W. R. Hearst has lost his appeal to the supreme court of New York in the contest election case for mayor. The court by a vote of 5 to 2 decided that it cannot issue a mandamus for opening the ballot boxes.

The editor of this paper has long since learned to pursue the even tenor of his way, uninfluenced by either praise or criticism. It is, however, a source of pride that only two newspapers out of more than 150 in Kentucky have made unfriendly reference to his recent election to the office of mayor. If it has given the two exceptions any satisfaction to display their venom, they are welcome to it.

Capt. S. S. Brown, the millionaire coal operator, capitalist and turfman, died at Pittsburgh Monday. He had been ill for a year with a disease that baffled his physicians, which reduced him from 300 pounds to less than 100, and caused him the most agonizing suffering. He retained consciousness almost to the last and asked only that his last moments be free from pain.

This year has 53 Sundays and the statement has been made that there will not be another such year for 110 years. This view is not accepted by C. D. Walker, of Adairville, Ky., who has calculated that there will be seventeen years during the present century with 53 Sundays, the next one in 1911. He says any year that begins on Sunday will contain 53 Sundays.

Gov. Chamberlain, of Oregon, has appointed John M. Gearin, Democrat, of Portland, to succeed Senator John H. Mitchell, Republican, as United States Senator. He will serve until March 4, 1907. Senator Gearin is 55 years old and a native of Oregon.

John A. Baird, city editor of the Louisville Times, fell down a stairway in his father's house in Louisville and sustained a fracture of the skull. His condition is critical. Mr. Baird is 43 years old and has been connected with various papers in Louisville for 29 years.

Judge Jas. E. Cantrill, who had been disabled for a year or more from a stroke of paralysis, has so far recovered that he has assumed the duties of his office as judge of the court of appeals. Judge Cantrill had never taken his seat since his election in November, 1904, until yesterday.

A movement has been set on foot to erect a monument to Stephen Collins Foster, who wrote "My Old Kentucky Home," a song that is heard around the world as one of the representative ballads of America.

England now has a new cabinet under the leadership of Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, who succeeds Mr. Balfour. Seventeen letters and a broken machine a good deal of sugar for a cent when the newspapers have to speak of Sir Henry etc.

BILL FOR FISH HATCHERY.

Congressman Stanley Trying to Get One For Hopkinsville.

$25,000 APPROPRIATION.

Would Soon Stock the Small Streams and Ponds With Game Fish.

Representative A. O. Stanley has introduced a bill in the House to establish a fish hatchery in Christian county and appropriating $25,000 for the erection of a suitable building in this city. These hatcheries are being located in all parts of the country and the government is devoting much attention to the development of the fish industry. The river at this place was stocked with young fish a few years ago and as a result there are some fine game fish in the stream.

With a hatchery located here it would not be long until all of the streams in Western Kentucky and private ponds as well could be stocked with game fish. The people here will thank Mr. Stanley for his interest in Hopkinsville and will be glad to see him get his bill through.

CRITICAL COMMENT

Concerning Mrs. Baker, Who Appears at Tabernacle Dec. 19-20.

From Prof. Geo. W. Kirchwey, Dean of the School of Law, Columbia University: I am not much of an admirer of public readings as a means of entertainment, but Mrs. Baker's interpretations rise above the level of mere entertainment and have a creative and transforming quality which I do not find in other work of the kind. They seem to me as admirable about the artistic standpoint as they are transforming and stimulating from the educational point of view.

From L. W. Johnson, Ph. D., University of Tennessee: Mrs. Baker's range of passion is so great that she was equally successful in portraying each selection—Browning, Kipling, Rostand, As I listened I realized the truth of Aristotle's dictum that the drama serves to purge our feelings through both laughter and tears. The secret of Mrs. Baker's power seems to lie in the fact that she is that rare combination, a woman of keen intellect with a warm sympathetic heart. Nor is her art the least that she evidently aspires to use it for moral ends.

From Miss Mary A. Blood, principal, Columbia School of Oratory, Chicago, Ill.: Mrs. Baker's work is thoroughly artistic, powerful, scholarly—an example of true literary interpretation.

John Griffin's "King Richard."

The announcement of the coming engagement in this city of John Griffin on December 22 carries with it a great deal of interest to the best class of theatre-goers and this interest is intensified by the fact that he will present Shakespeare's immortal tragedy "King Richard the Third." Mr. Griffin's presentation of it will have more adequate aid in the very excellent company he has elected, and the splendid fireproofed scenic equipment furnished by his management. Many novel and thrilling electrical effects and chemical illusions have been added and the performance in its entirety will be the most important event in the season's theatrical history. Mr. Griffin is personally a most interesting character, a combination of the mental and physical. In appearance he suggests the peerless Edwin Foster and has the frame and strength of the champion pugilist, James J. Jeffries, while mentally he is one of the greatest students of the day of classic literature, and is fairly a crank on the works of the divine bard, Shakespeare.

SOUTHERN TELEGRAPH.

Name of New Company in Telephone Mat-

FIGHT WAXES WARM.

Interesting Telephone Matter From a Pulaski, Tenn., Paper.

We have never expected the enemy—ours and yours—to keep still.

We have met them on many fields. And we know their methods. In war an honorable enemy always appears in its own uniform.

If a soldier is caught in a uniform other than his own, he is shot as a spy.

A company known as the Southern Telegraph Association has appeared in the field between Hopkinsville and Henderson since we came here.

They never appeared before.

Why? We know the agents of the Cumberland Company have induced men, for wages, to go into this field to secure options for franchises for the Southern Telegraph Association.

If the Cumberland denies this we will publish affidavits in proof of it. We think these agents themselves are the subjects of imposition by their employers.

We quote the following from the Nashville Daily American:

"The Tennessee Telephone & Telegraph Company of infamous memory, it is believed, has a counterpart in the Southern Telegraph Company.

Sanford Duncan, President of the former company, is one of the three charter members of the latter, which was incorporated under the laws of New Jersey, and which filed an abstract of its charter with the Secretary of State of Tennessee in March 1901.

The other incorporators of the company are John T. Landis, who was President of the News Publishing Company, which was supposed to be controlled by the Cumberland Telephone Company, and G. H. B. Martin, of New Jersey.

It will be recalled that the Tennessee Telephone Company was regarded as a dummy company, by the Cumberland and Company, and organized for the purpose of frustrating the efforts of the Rome Company to secure a franchise in this city. A bill granting it a franchise was introduced in the City Council on the same night as the Home bill. The history of the former bill was published and it was finally rejected, only three Councilmen voting for it. It is hardly probable that after its ignominious defeat that it will be again revived. Another company, however, also supposed to be a dummy company, may perform the offices which the Tennessee Company was expected to perform.

The Hopkinsville Home Telephone Company and The Independent Long Distance Co. are endeavoring to secure rights of way along various turnpikes and roads from Hopkinsville to Henderson, Kentucky. Many rights of way in the State have already been secured, and a valid consideration has been given by the company for them.

It is reported that the Southern Telegraph Association, the company referred to as having been granted a charter by the State of New Jersey, has been endeavoring to induce property owners who have granted rights of way to the Long Distance Co. to rescind their grants and to give it options on the rights of way. The Southern Telegraph Association, it is said, offered the property owners $10 a pole for each pole it might put up in event it built the telephone or telephone line it ostensibly proposed to build. It is said it has succeeded in securing a number of options on rights of way previously acquired by the Long Distance Company, but these options are not regarded as valid, the latter company having previously given valid considerations for them.

J. C. Symmes, purchasing agent of the Cumberland Company, took the acknowledgment of the local incorporators of the execution of their articles of incorporation.

While this is called a Telegraph

Association under its charter, it is expressly authorized to do a telephone business.

The Nashville American further said, editorially, and referring to this same subject:

"There can be no stronger argument for telephone communication than these desperate methods employed by the monopoly. What enormous profit the monopoly must be making if it pays it to advertise and maintain a fly-by-night company with which to fight competition, and how conclusively it is shown by such action, competition to be most effective in reducing its excessive profits.

Now we have quoted the foregoing as a reference to same remarks we shall make.

Last week "The Record" of Pulaski Tenn., printed under double headlines:

"FRAUD ALLEGED."

"BILL AGAINST LONG DISTANCE TELEPHONE & TELEGRAPH CO. FILED AT FRANKLIN."

A hullabaloo about a bill filed against this company by H. Moore and wife, alleging the fraud of this company in securing a right of way by their lands and asking that the same be rescinded and cancelled for the fraud alleged.

This looked like an ordinary news item.

It wasn't though. It was a Cumberland advertisement plan for to be paid, for at the usual rates.

The object was to put us in disrepute—if they could.

And to discredit our representatives in this field.

By suppression of truth or suggestions of falsehood they endeavor to stifle competition.

Mr. Moore says he was induced to bring this suit by an agent of the Cumberland Telephone & Telegraph Company, Parman Cox, of Franklin, on his assurance that he would be furnished a lawyer by his company.

Free of charge and that the suit would cost him nothing. Mr. Moore has found out his mistake and offers to dismiss his bill.

Suppose we should begin to publish accounts of the various suits that have been brought against the Cumberland?

Would it argue anything in our favor?

Certainly not.

It would only show that we are as small and unscrupulous in our methods as the Cumberland.

And whatever else we may be, we are not that.

We were informed yesterday by the parties themselves that Mr. Will Townsend, representing himself as an agent of the Southern Telegraph Association, had been endeavoring to induce them to bring suit against us on allegations of fraud to have a right of way granted to us cancelled.

We were told that he promised for his company that they would furnish a lawyer free and defray all the expenses of the suit.

And asked them to meet the company's attorney, Maj. Ewing, at Lynnville Saturday.

Maj. Ewing was at Lynnville Saturday.

And so these people propose to use unsuspecting citizens as cats paws to make trouble for us.

No one knows better than the Cumberland that we are building and will continue to build our lines.

They know that if we did not, we would be a right of way we could never get.

But every day they delay us only adds to their revenues the money we will get when our line is completed.

And so they are willing to resort to these means and to spend this money in order that they may save more money.

This is December 5.

It is Tuesday afternoon, 3:45 o'clock.

This very afternoon Mr. Townsend and an associate here had a long talk with certain persons we can name, at Lynnville, after which they called up Mr. C. L. Meyers of the Cumberland company and had a talk with him about these matters.

These same persons have signed rights of way for us.

Now what business has the Cumberland and its dummy to "monkey" with our rights there?

Wonder if this is maintenance. Maintenance is an old common law offense and is thus defined:

"At common law, maintenance is an officious inter-meddling in a suit that no way belongs to one, by maintaining or assisting either party with money or otherwise, to prosecute or defend it, and signifies an unlawful taking in hand or upholding of quarrels or sides."

to the right of maintenance of common right." 6 American and English Ency. of Law.

"A malicious, or at least, officious interference in a suit in which the offender has no interest, to assist one of the parties to it against the other, with money or advice to prosecute or defend the action without any authority of law." 1 Southern Crimes.

"The intermeddling of a stranger in a suit for the purpose of stirring up strife and continuing the litigation." Bouvier's Law Dictionary.

We have been fortunate in securing some of the right of way blanks of the Southern Telegraph Association, and in due time we will publish facsimiles of them.

They offer $10.00 per pole to be built within the pole as indicated, the option to be good for twelve months.

They know that by this time we will be through or they will have given us all the trouble they can.

Then they will not build the line. Ten dollars per pole is about $450 per mile.

It would therefore cost about $36,000 for the pole rights from Pulaski to Nashville.

And every one who thinks twice before acting once knows the price will never be paid.

Because they will never build the line.

THE HOPKINSVILLE HOME TEL. CO. LONG DISTANCE TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH COMPANY.

The Case of Caleb Powers Will Be Argued in Washington.

Washington, Dec. 13.—The counsel for Caleb Powers, three times convicted of the murder of Gov. William Goebel, and now under sentence of death, held a conference with counsel for the state of Kentucky in regard to the hearing of the motion to transfer the case to the federal court.

An agreement was reached by which argument is to be heard on January 15. This agreement was submitted to the court and approved, and the court was placed on that day a docket for argument. The supreme court will decide whether or not Powers shall be tried in the federal court.

Lexington, Ky., Dec. 10.—In attempting to arrest Jack Noble at Jackson to-day Grant Holliday, a Deputy Sheriff, was shot and killed. Holliday had a warrant charging a misdemeanor, and sought out Noble in the suburbs. It is not known what words passed between them, but Holliday shot Noble in the face with a shotgun. Raising on his elbow Noble fired six bullets into Holliday, killing him instantly. Noble is not expected to live.

Estray Notice.

Taken up by Mrs. E. D. Davis, living about four miles East of Hopkinsville, one Jersey cow, white in face and white stripe on left hind, white under belly and white switch. Said cow was taken up about the first of November, 1935, and appraised by me at ten dollars.

The more Magazines there are, the more Indispensable is The Review of Reviews

"Indispensable." "The one magazine I feel I must take." "The world under a field-glass." "An education in public affairs and current literature."—these are some of the phrases one hears from noted people who read The Review of Reviews. The more magazines there are, the more necessary is The Review of Reviews, because it brings together the best that is in all the most important monthlies of the world. Such is the flood of periodical literature that nowadays people say that the only way to keep up with it is to read The Review of Reviews. Entirely over and above this reviewing section, it has more original matter and illustrations than most magazines, and the most timely and important articles printed in any monthly.

Probably the most useful section of all is Dr. Albert Shaw's illustrated "Progress of the World," where public events and issues are authoritatively and lucidly explained in every line. Many a substantial writer, "This department alone is worth more than the price of the magazine." The music section department, depicting current history in caricature, is another favorite. The Review of Reviews covers live continents, and yet is American, first and foremost. Men in public life, the members of Congress, professional men, and the great captains of industry who must keep "up with the times," intelligent men and women all over America, have decided that it is "indispensable."

SCHEME THAT FAILED

A LITTLE ADVENTURE IN A HOTEL.

"As prosperous as you see me now, two weeks ago I was on the hog," remarked Ferguson, as he paid the man in the white duck jacket and settled his scintillating scarf more securely in his grass-green necktie. "I had drifted into New City with 12¢ cents in my pocket, change in my pocket and a blameless reputation, as far as Sioux City was concerned. I calculated that before I got out of there the reputation would get spotted up some, because I was hustling Guff Nilson, who had agreed to meet me at the Boogie.

"I made a few cautious inquiries in a roundabout way concerning friend Guff and I was finally directed to a fine sandstone building, where I was informed he was staying. I didn't call on him. What was the use? I knew he wouldn't be at liberty to do me any good—not for 82 days, anyway.

"I had a good-looking valise with me that I found at Mission Valley, when we changed cars. It was a disappointment inside, as it contained nothing but four soiled collars, a brass pipe, two ham sandwiches, a razor and a hairbrush, but it was a dandy externally, and I thumped it down on the marble in front of the hotel clerk with all the confidence in the world.

"I'll be here for a few days," I said, and I want a good, light room with a bath.

"I went. He did ask me if I had any baggage checks, but I took no notice of him. As soon as I got to the room I threw the boy half a dollar and then went down and bought a 25-cent cigar at the cigar stand so that the clerk could see me.

"I went to bed at a tolerably early hour that night. I didn't want to do any cheap grafting if I could help it and I had to study up some plan of campaign. I finally concluded that I would do what I could with the hotel and hike right out on the early morning train. So about two o'clock I went softly into my room, feeling with my handy little pocket assortment of tools and stole into the room next to mine.

"That was all I stole. There came hair-raising yelps from the bed by the time I had got to the bureau. If you ever saw a cat and a mouse get away in your life it was the one I made. I went like a tom-cat out of the pantry window, and I was in my own room safe and sound before the echo of that cry died away on the startled air and I got into bed in a hurry.

Just at that instant as I heard the sound of hurrying feet a bright idea came to me. "The fellow's got my trousseau," I thought. I had left and slung 'em out of the open window. Then I poked my head out of the door and joined the chorus of alarm up and down the corridor.

"What was it? I asked the clerk, whom I recognized in his disguise of pyjamas and bathrobe. 'Is it burglars?' I'll bet it is, because if there wasn't a one in my room ten minutes ago I'm badly fooled. I was three parts asleep when I woke up and I thought I might be mistaken, and I went up again, but I can't find my trousseau.

"Somebody else called him then and he excused himself and hurried off. I went back and turned on the electric light and got into bed. In about ten minutes there was a knock at the door and the clerk came in with a stout individual he introduced as the proprietor. They asked me to tell them what I knew about the recent disturbance, and I narrated how, hearing a slight noise, I woke up and thought I saw a dark figure fit across the room and out of the door, but hearing nothing more I imagined I had the nightmare and snored off again till the yells in the next room lifted me out of bed in quest of my basement clothing, now missing.

"Mr. Proprietor was very sorry. No doubt there had been robbery, but the robber had escaped. The lady in the next room had given the alarm just in time to save herself from the loss of jewels valued at $2,000. Think of that! He would see me in the morning.

"I expect you to," I said, significantly. "I value those trousseaus of mine at $300. There was that much currency in them. I think it's up to you to make good."

"He went sadly away and I turned over on my pillow with a mind at ease. Of course, I knew he'd never dig up any three centuries on my say-so, but it was a cinch in my mind that I was fixed for a ticket to Chicago, reasonable expenses and new trousseaus. Under the circumstances that was good enough for me.

"Did I get 'em? Nit, not. He came up according to agreement, but he brought something with him. It was my trousseau. They'd caught on the rail of the fire escape on the floor below and instead of being grabbed by some passer-by or falling into an alley ash can, they had been waving there gracefully in the morning breeze, attracting the undivided attention of close on a thousand people in a bunch.

"Suggest," I said. "He must have taken the money and thrown the trousseaus away."

"Very strange," says he. "Very strange indeed with him. He looked along with a cold gray eye, coughed behind his hand and went out.

"There was something foreboding in his manner. I got instantly into those trousseaus and I didn't hit the office door by way of the staircase and was out on the street before he could drop down on the elevator. I left the valise. I didn't have any use for it in the box car that I managed to sneak away into, anyway.

"I got to Omaha, all right, though somewhat the worse for my wear, and there I found kind friends. But somehow I've got a hunch that I only missed visiting Guff Nilson by a half a hair's breadth, after all."—Chicago Daily News.

EFFECT OF INSECT NOISES

To Some the Singing Brings Cheer, to Others Melancholy Forebodings.

Some people find a cheerfulness in the melodies of our late summer evenings; to others the very sound of the field singers brings melancholy. Children are peculiarly sensitive to the depressing influence of these eerie voices, says the Philadelphia Ledger. Little Lucille had been allowed to leave home alone for the first time. A month's visit to relatives in the country had been planned, but the morning following her departure had found the child back home. "I couldn't sleep, the bugs bothered so," she sobbed.

In the south the katydid is usually heard about the latter half of August. Six weeks thereafter the simpler folk look for frost, so in yellow fever years their piercing little voice is heard with joy. Apart from this happy association, the vesper note of these tiny singers seems to many people only a mournful prelude to the thrush of summer. The piping of the winter cricket is usually recognized as a sound of cheer, and there is a popular idea that the little fellow brings good luck.

For the bright homeliness of his indoor pictures, as well as through the title of one of his most charming stories, we associate Dickens with the minstrel of the hearth. Milton finds the cricket's note one of mirth, and Leigh Hunt hears only gladness in its song, as well as in that of its "sweet and tiny cousin of the field." Through Hunt's challenge to his friend Keats the grasshopper and the cricket are lifted into the realm of immortal song, since the sonnet written in Hunt's cottage has so much of the haunting magic of that young poet who wrought upon the homeliest groundwork the brood of richest imagery.

HUNTING ORANG-OUTANG.

Trapping Members of the Monkey Family Easy Compared with Capture of This Rare Species.

Trapping the smaller members of the monkey family is a comparatively easy matter, but the hunter who wishes to secure live specimens of the orang-outang cannot have recourse to the usual methods and has to employ a laborious process.

The process is based upon the fact that the orangs have a liking for certain trees and frequent these to the exclusion of other near-by growths. They seem to regard them as a sanctuary and flee to them in time of danger.

Ascertaining a tree particularly favored, the hunter first drives his quarry to its branches, then, while his beaters keep up a din for the purpose of preventing an attempt at escape, the natives are set to work to chop at the trees within a radius of 50 feet all about the simian fortress.

No trunk is cut completely through, but is left with just enough fiber to hold the tree in position. This work is quickly accomplished with the large corps of servants, and at a signal one of the trees is toppled over.

The chopping has been so done that the falling tree carries with it its neighbor and in a twinkling of an eye the trees within a radius of 50 feet from the marked tree lie upon the ground, leaving the orang-outangs with no opportunity for getting away through their leafy avenues of escape.

The remainder of the process simply consists of chopping down the tree of refuge and throwing down the escaping orangs, in which they soon become entangled in their efforts to throw off the encumbrance.

Absolutely Correct.

When the last Cleveland baby was born Mr. Cleveland gave as 12 pounds. Dr. Bryant, who was present, interrupted the ex-president to say that the nurse had reported the young hopeful to be an eight-pounder. "Well," said Mr. Cleveland, "I know, for I weighed him with the same scales that I use when I go fishing."

Reason for Yelling.

She—Why, those men at the stock exchange run about yelling like a lot of crazy men.

He—Well, I guess you'd yell like a crazy man if you paid $60,000 for a seat and then couldn't sit down.—Yonkers Statesman.

Shifting is in the Nature of a Promotion.

A change in the general agency in New Orleans of the Louisville and Nashville, effective Jan. 1, was announced this week by D. M. Goodwyn, the general freight agent of the road, who has been here from Louisville since Tuesday. H. P. Salter, the general agent in this city, is to be transferred to Anniston, Ala., where he is to be general agent in charge of the traffic of the Birmingham Mineral division, one of the most important districts in point of tonnage on the Louisville and Nashville system. O. P. Bartlett, now stationed at Jacksonville, Fla., as general agent, is to succeed Mr. Salter in New Orleans. Mr. Salter takes the position made vacant by the appointment of W. E. Knox to the general freight agency of the Atlanta and West Point and Western Railway of Alabama. The shifting of Mr. Salter and Mr. Bartlett is in the nature of a promotion for both. They are recognized as two of the most capable of the ranking young men in the freight department of the road. Mr. Salter was appointed general agent at New Orleans May 10, 1904, succeeding O. H. Bartlett, now the contracting freight agent of the Louisville and Nashville. Mr. Salter began his railroad career with the Louisville & Nashville fifteen years ago as a clerk at Hopkinsville, Ky. From that station he was promoted to local agent at Sheffield, Ala. Later he was transferred as agent at Florence, Ala. From that point he was sent to Cincinnati as cashier; then was made joint agent of the Louisville and Nashville and Southern Railway at Middlesboro, Ky., and before his transfer to New Orleans as general agent was local agent for the road at Mount Pleasant, Tenn.—N. O. Daily Picayune.

FORCED TO LEAVE

Tobacco Buyer of Olmstead Told to "Git."

Russellville, Ky., Dec. 13.—The excitement is increasing over the situation of the tobacco association in this section. Monday a body of masked men went to see Mr. J. W. Scott, a tobacco buyer of Olmstead, Ky., and demanded of him, as the report goes, that he receive no more tobacco, or leave the country, or be killed. Mr. Scott left the country immediately with his family. It is said that this body of masked men were dressed in women's clothes.
